Description about the event:

Maddukuri Chandra Rao addressed the students of pharmacy that pharmacists are the backbone of health care in many different settings. But providing care does not begin in community or hospital pharmacies. Taking care of patient's starts with recognizing the health issues of populations and developing medicines, policies and education to tackle them. We pharmacists are often there at the very beginning of the process — when the first molecule that effectively treats a disease is identified,” All these pharmacist activities are receiving a central role in ensuring research in new medicines and use of these medicines safely. This was an opportunity for students following the courses leading to degrees in pharmacy and pharmaceutical technology to participate in community outreach activities and collaborate with the Department of Pharmacy.
